Allergy Testing Now Available at Carolina Clinic for Health and Wellness

Carolina Clinic for Health and Wellness in Greenville, NC announces the opening of an onsite allergy testing lab facility to provide faster lab results and more effective diagnosis to patients suffering from allergy symptoms.

Eastern North Carolina is one of the worst areas in the Southeast for allergy sufferers — pollen and mold being the number one cause — but other allergens, such as those found in food and drugs can also trigger unwanted symptoms. There are ways to reduce or prevent some allergens: wash hands after touching pets, keep windows and doors closed during high pollen seasons, mop, vacuum, and dust often, and wash bedding in hot water twice a month.

When allergy sufferers need more relief it is time to see an allergist. Carolina Clinic Health and Wellness patients receive that provide relief sooner with new onsite allergy testing. Having an onsite lab facility also means allergy tests are less expensive, eliminating the need to mail tests out.

“We are excited about this new lab and the additional relief it will provide our patients,” said Dr. Surkin, President and Founder of Carolina Clinic Health and Wellness. “This new addition to our practice reinforces our goal of providing comprehensive care.”
